BATTLE WITH REBELS

General Rodriguez Claims He Was the Victor.

DISPERSED ENEMIES

Government Lost but One Man and Three Were Wounded, While the Insurgents Had Eight Slain and Several Hurt.

Havana, Sept. 15.—Government forces won a victory over the rebels at a point close to Havana. General Rodriguez, with 400 rural guardsmen, attacked the rebels under General Del Castro and Colonels Asbert and Acosta, 1,000 strong, at Majay, twelve miles south of Havana. After a stubborn fight the rebels dispersed. Eight of their number were killed and twenty-three wounded. Of the guardsmen one was killed and thirteen wounded. General Rodriguez returned to Havana. There is considerable speculation as to why the enemy was not pursued.

Heavy fighting was reported near El Cano, ten miles southwest of Havana.

President Roosevelt's action in sending Secretary of War Taft and Acting Secretary of State Bacon to Cuba to investigate conditions was regarded favorably on the whole by those who were first apprised of it. Cubans generally, it may be said, do not desire intervention of any sort in Cuban affairs, but the desire for a settlement of some kind predominates. The conviction is overwhelming that the trouble must be settled through the United States.

The truth of President Roosevelt's picture of the deplorability of the revolution and of his reference to the United States' right of intervention is not questioned.

Secretary Taft's reputation as a pacificator and as an administrator in the Philippines makes his coming particularly welcome.

A force of rebels destroyed two stone bridges over a highway near Cabanas.

The commander of the Cespedes, a coast guard vessel, has been arrested for negligence in allowing ammunition for the revolution to be landed near Rio Sud.

The letter of President Roosevelt to Senor de Quesada, Cuban minister, is the great topic among Cubans and foreigners alike. Far from considering references to American intervention as something to be dreaded, it is almost universally regarded as the most desirable consummation possible of the trouble. There are some persons who do not agree with this view, but they are very rare. All business interests are anxious for intervention, and even politicians admit this will be the best outcome.

The Associated Press correspondent has information to the effect that some government officials closest to President Palma privately welcome the idea, and the president himself desires protection, though not permanent intervention.

The general opinion among Cuban business men is intervention is the most desirable thing that can be suggested, and the fear is it may be only temporary. There is a somewhat marked feeling of disappointment among veterans that intervention is possible or imminent. Veterans, for sentimental reasons, regret to see Cuba sacrifice her sovereignty in even a small degree. This feeling, however, is offset by the universal desire for permanent settlement of the trouble and for a government which can be relied on to preserve peace under all circumstances.

LAND AT CIENFUEGOS.

Marines From the Marietta Protect Sugar Plantations of Americans.

Washington, Sept. 15.—A dispatch was received from Commander Fulham of the Marietta stating a force had landed from that ship at Cienfuegos to protect sugar plantations which are threatened.

A telegram was also received at the state department from Mr. Atkins, one of the owners of the Constanza estate, near Cienfuegos, in which he says he received a cablegram from Cienfuegos, announcing the insurgents raided Solidad, taking horses. He says the information does not confirm press dispatches as to the destruction of sugar plantations.

From a dispatch received from Mr. Sleeper, in charge of the American legation at Havana, it appears the extent of the damage to American property near Cienfuegos has been exaggerated.

Left Under Hurry Orders.

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 15.—A detachment of sixty-five marines, under the command of Captain Charles Hatch, left the Portsmouth navy yard under hurry orders Saturday for Norfolk, Va. The opinion among officers at the local yard is that the marines will be hurried south in order that they may be available for service in Cuba.

PRESIDENT ASKS CUBA

To Realize Her Responsibility as a Republic.

LANGUAGE IS PLAIN

Chief Executive Urges That Peace
Be Restored and Asserts That Americans, and Interests
Must Be Protected.

Oyster Bay, Sept. 15.—After a protracted conference with Secretary of War Taft Acting Secretary of State Bacon and Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte President Roosevelt Friday addressed an important communication to Cuba, and arranged to send Secretaries Taft and Bacon to that island at once to make a thorough investigation of conditions there and lend their influence to restore peace.

The communication is addressed to the Cuban minister to the United States, Senor Quesada. It is an impassioned plea to Cuba to realize her responsibility as a self-governing republic, and to restore peace to the island. Her attention is called in no uncertain language to the responsibility which the United States bears to the island, and the certainty that such responsibility will necessarily be exercised should peace not be preserved.

The president says he has certain information that the peace of the island is now menaced, and that American property has been destroyed.

The conference which resulted in Cuban decision began at Sagamore Hill shortly after 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and continued until 10 o'clock at night.

Secretary Taft said as he left Oyster Bay that he had no idea as to the length of his visit to Cuba. He indicated that there would be no haste in the investigation which would be made there. Aside from this, no information of the discussion was divulged by those attending the conference, the statement being made that the letter from the president was intended to cover the whole Cuban situation so far as it was desirable to do so in the public print.

Senator Beveridge of Indiana, a member of the senate committee on Cuban relations, also participated in the conference.

Full Powers Granted.

Havana, Sept. 15.—Extra session of congress completed its labors at one sitting. President Palma was given full power to carry on a war. Palma, in a brief message, charged political opponents with causing insurrection.

Water Tank Destroyed.

Havana, Sept. 15.—The rebels have destroyed the water tank at Salud, on the Western railroad, about twenty miles south of Havana. They also attempted to burn a train at Salud.

PARA GRASS.

Experiments Looking to Its Cultivation to Be Made.

San Antonio, Sept. 15.—C. V. Piper of the national department of agriculture will make a trip over southwest Texas for the purpose of taking preliminary steps to test Para grass, a forage hay, he desires to introduce into his section. It will be planted on the various experiment stations in Texas. The grass is raised extensively in Florida, and is said to be an excellent feed for cattle, and makes a good grade of hay and produces abundantly.

BOYS WIN.

Strike Against Western Union Telegraph Company Succeeded.

Houston, Sept. 15.—Two messenger boys in revolt against punishment Friday morning held up the Western Union Telegraph company in Houston, precipitated a strike and in the end won their point, while messages remained undelivered upon the hooks, and the register of calls covered pages without a recorded answer.

The trouble resulted from an alleged propensity on the part of the boys for "playing hooky."

GETS LIMIT.

Negro Fined One Hundred Dollars For Insulting White Girl.

Cleburne, Sept. 15.—A negro employe of a local hotel, charged with making an improper remark to a white girl waiter, was fined by Mayor Allen $100 and costs, $108 in all. The negro was informed by his honor that it was not on account of her color that he got the maximum fine, but the gravity of his offense.

"The Law's Delays" Today.

Hamlet Had Little to Complain of Compared With the "Law's Delay" of this Day and Time.

There has just ended at Fort Worth one of the most colossal farces in the history of Texas jurisprudence. Nearly four years ago a hybrid negro asked a ride in the wagon of an honest German farmer named Swackhammer, the latter having been to Arlington to dispose of some cotton. The negro, who had been picking cotton for Swackhammer, knew he had all or part of the money, and after riding a short distance, he deliberately murdered the farmer, who was found dead in his wagon, drawn home by the driverless horses. The negro, Rufus Martin, was within a few hours captured by the police in a disreputable quarter of Ft. Worth with the farmer's money in his pocket. In short, he was given a fair trial, able counsel appointed to defend him, and in turn the district court of Tarrant County tried, mistried and retried the case, each time finding the defendant guilty in the first degree. Later the case got into the State Court of Criminal Appeals, and the lower court was sustained. Then to the court of last resort—the United States Supreme Court—and now that tribunal sustains the State Court, and unless the Governor interferes Martin will be hanged Thursday, July 12. According to the newspapers and general opinion, there was no doubt of the negro's guilt. Under the law a lawyer is allowed $10 for the defense of one who has no means to employ one. Now the question is, did $10 drag this case along for nearly four years, and finally into the United States Supreme Court. Did a $10 "fee" defeat the ends of justice and stay the hand of vengeance for a widow and orphans? If so, we have a poor opinion of at least part of the legal talent. We do not and will not believe that lawyers are moved to such stupendous deeds of philanthropy as to spend means and four years of time in this manner. "There's a reason," and there's also a reason for mob law, and it would seem that the people were coming to take note of the fact. As a last request the defendant lawyer asked the Judge that he put his court on record as being the first to depart from that silly old custom of hanging on Friday, the attorney saying it was high time the people gave up this senseless libel on Friday. Therefore, the court set Thursday, the 12th day of July, as the day when Rufus Martin shall pay the extreme penalty for the murder of Charles Swackhammer.—Mineral Wells Index.

Some of the Cotton Problems.

The Staple Must Be Produced Cheaper and Not So Liberally Plucked Between Raiser and Spinner.

It is not astonishing that the recent meetings of cotton producers and manufacturers should have evoked important discussions of questions relating to the production of cotton. The organization of the cotton growers for better prices has naturally attracted attention throughout the manufacturing districts of the world, and the stability and prosperity of cotton production concerns the whole country, as well as the South. Up to the present time, however, the producers have been compelled by force of circumstances to give most attention to the immediate question of price and have not deeply considered the deeper and broader economics of the industry.

While The Post unhesitatingly commends the action of the cotton producers to avert price levels that deprive them of reasonable profit, it believes that the building of warehouses, the storage of surpluses, the better ginning, handling, protection and baling of the staple are more important than the restriction of production. It is an economic axiom that abundance is wealth while scarcity is poverty. It is much better to have the abundance and to care for it properly than to create a scarcity as a means of increasing the price.

Pay 'Em or Don't Make 'Em.

A bill collector came in this office a few days since and after getting what his bill called for, remarked: "Well I've got to go and see so and so; I sure do hate to present a bill to him—you know why? Well I'll tell you. He is good all right, but he always says something to make a fellow feel bad. He will take the bill look over it carefully and then whistle a long, low whistle like he was trying to give a signal to a ghost. About that time he says you fellows get all the money I make; it keeps me busy paying you. I've got a good notion to make my wife pay cash after this. say, bring that bill around next month—I am so busy that I can not take time to fool with it now. Then I'll go around the next month and get stood off until the 10th, and then go back again. After he whistles you that low, long whistle and schrooches up his face like he had been eating green persimmons, he will pay it." We collectors have enough to make the saints mad, I'll tell you." Now there is a lesson in that fellow's talk. Men, especially men in business, should pay a bill cheerfully and willingly—just like it was their greatest pleasure to do so. Either stand it off pleasantly for a few days or pay it promptly and with a smile. Nothing makes a man more unpopular than to pay a bill begrudgingly and like he was parting with his wife on her death bed.—McGregor Mirror.

The Plow the Civilizer.

Stop those plows and everything stops. Make it impossible for them to be run, even for a single season, and woe awaits the whole human race. It means a cessation of prosperity, a clog in the wheels of advancement, a disastrous falling off in government revenues, diminished growing region must necessarily be based upon the ability of the farmers to produce cotton cheaper than any competitive region. Abnormal prices due to scarcity will necessarily stimulate production elsewhere, but so long as the South can produce cotton better and cheaper than other countries, it will enjoy a monopoly of the industry.

It is plain that the higher the price the less the demand will be. The millions of the Far East can never become large purchasers of the staple so long as prices remain beyond their means. We must remember that the masses of cotton consumers in the Old World have no such earning capacity as our people have here.

We do not for a moment contend that the present level of prices affords producers greater profits than they are entitled to, but it is certain that present prices tend to restrict the demand for cotton.

While devoting their efforts to better facilities for handling and marketing the cotton, producers would do well to pay due attention to the importance of greatly increasing their yield per acre and reducing the cost of production. In this way, the present level of profits may be maintained even though prices should fall to eight or nine cents a pound.—Houston Post.

bank accounts, industrial depression all along the line, calamity, want and hard times. Those plows must go what ever else stops, and they are going right now in countless thousands over the whole area of the North temperate zone. There are many other implements of value on the farm, but it is the plow that counts most. It is the sine qua non, the indispensable condition, the alpha and omega, the ne plus ultra of farming. Take away the farmer's plow and what is he? A broken reed, a crippled athlete, a team unhitched. It has been with us a long time, but it was a still longer time coming. Man went along for ages, thousands, perhaps hundreds of thousands of years, before he discovered the principle of the plow. He had to pass through the dreary hunting stage and the more fruitful but still unprogressive pastoral age, before he saw the light that led to agriculture. When that half civilized man in the Nile valley found out the art of tickling the bosom of mother earth to make her more fruitful though he had nothing better than a forked stick, great was the discovery thereof. The seed dropped in that crude furrow and the resultant thin crop meant much to the human race. There man first caught a glimpse of his true destiny! There agriculture was born! It was but a meager beginning and long and weary was the journey yet to be traveled, but the secret had been disclosed, that secret far more valuable than the lamp of Aladdin that made all things new, far more precious than the touch of Midas that turned everything into gold. From that forked stick, first drawn by man himself, then by his wife and later by a buffalo bull, shone forth the dawn of a better day coming, whence has sprung all the sweetness of modern civilization.—American Farmer.

PECULIAR "HEATHENISM."

That of the Japanese May Be Regarded as Not Altogether Objectable.

Are the Japanese heathen? Yes. In the minds of many persons they are linked up with the people of Patagonia and other foreign lands.

But the Japs are a peculiar kind of heathen, says the San Antonio (Tex.) Gazette. One could almost wish that America could import some of their savage customs.

For instance, they have what is known as the moral code. It is not a Sunday or a parade affair. They do not forget it for six days, and then brush the dust off it when the minister comes to dinner on Sunday. The code is a part of the national life, and here it is:

Diligence is one's profession. Love and loyalty between master and servants.

Decorum and propriety. Gallantry and bravery. Truthfulness and justice. Simplicity and frugality. Contempt and meanness.

The best thing in religion is love, for it combines tenderness, charity, compassion, courtesy, decency, respect. It is a combination of all the virtues, and the Japs have taken this best thing and molded it into their lives until the people have become artists, lovers of the beautiful. They regard gardens as their choicest possessions and believe that care for the aged is a privilege instead of a duty.

It was the emperor of this heathen land who commanded his soldiers to not only fight valiantly for their native land, but to love their enemies.

And the prisoners of Japan found better treatment than their own homes afforded.

Prof. Nitobe says: "What Christianity has done in Europe towards arousing compassion in the minds of belligerent horrors, love of music and letters has done in Japan."

When Buying Boots.

It is now a generally accepted theory that the human foot varies in the course of the 24 hours. On rising in the morning the foot is at its smallest. During the day it gradually increases in size, reaching the limit at three p. m. After this it remains the same until we retire, when it slowly decreases. Thus the best time for buying boots or shoes is in the middle of the afternoon, when our feet are at their largest.

Marble Playing.

Children played marbles on the streets many years ago. Playing marbles have been found among the ruins of Pompeii.

Originally this child's amusement came from Holland, and was introduced into England about 1630. The marbles were made of clay, stone and agate, and so extensive was the call for them that they came to be considered an important article of trade in Germany.

Home of Toothpicks.

Quill toothpicks come from France. The largest factory in the world is near Paris, where there is an annual product of 20,000,000 quills. The factory was started to make quill pens, but when these went out of general use it was converted into a toothpick mill.

Advance of Surgery.

Twenty years ago 50 per cent. of cases of amputation terminated fatally; but under the modern system of antiseptic surgery the danger of this operation has been so far reduced that the rate of mortality does not now exceed from 5 to 12 per cent. of the number of cases.

Football.

A kind of football was first played about the time of Edward III. in England. Shortly after its advent, however, it was prohibited. Later it was again revived, but in the reign of James I. it was suppressed as being rough and brutal.

Good Kindling.

"Kindness," remarked the man who comments on things, "is what kindles the fire of love in the human breast."

"Together with a few bank notes," replied Senator Badger.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

HIGH PRICES OF CHAIRS.

One Dozen of Louis XIV. Days Was Recently Sold for One Hundred Thousand Dollars.

The value of chairs is strictly relative. Enormous prices have been paid for chairs in recent years, notably $100,000 for a set of half a dozen Louis XIV. chairs, upholstered in Gobelin tapestry, which were originally made for Marie Antoinette. Even this price, states the Cleveland Plain Dealer, by the way, was exceeded by the sums paid for three of the Hamilton palace tables, one of which brought $30,000.

A most valuable and historically interesting suite of furniture is that which more than a century ago was presented by Warren Hastings to Tipoo Sahib and which was purchased at the Lonsborough sale for $5,000. The suite consists of a red card table, a sofa, two small cabinets and four armchairs, all of solid ivory most exquisitely carved. But probably the most costly chair in the world is one of the many treasures of the shah of Persia. It is of solid gold, thickly incrustated with diamonds, rubies, pearls and sapphires, and its value is estimated at $500,000. In the house of commons at Westminster are two armchairs which once belonged to Gladstone, and one of which was his favorite seat when at Downing street.

A short time ago a romantic story was told in the French papers of two dilapidated armchairs which were sold among the effects of a Mme. Borg, an Algerian seaport town. The widow was reputed to be rich, but a thorough search of her rooms failed to disclose any of her hoardings, and it was assumed by her relatives that she had died practically penniless.

Not long after the sale of her furniture, however, it was observed that the purchaser of the chairs, a Spanish stevedore named Perez, ceased to work, began to walk about in fine clothes, to purchase land and houses and generally gave evidence of having come into a fortune. Suspicion being aroused, Perez was arrested, and now stands accused of having appropriated to his own use the old lady's fortune of at least $20,000, which had been concealed by her in the dilapidated armchairs.

Big Bird in Indiana.

John Kruse, a farmer of Indiana, has killed a huge bird which attacked a calf in his barnyard. It is thought to be a condor.

It measures seven feet six inches from tip to tip of wing and three feet two inches from bill to tip of tail. It has a strong curved beak six inches long and its talons measure two and one-half inches. On the neck, two inches below the head, is a circle of pure white feathers.

Discovered by a Sow.

In the cathedral of La Paz, in South America, there is preserved a silver pig with jeweled eyes, a thank offering made long years ago by a pious Spanish prospector, who had been led to stumble across what proved to be an exceedingly valuable silver mine owing to preliminary investigations that had been carried out by an inquisitive sow.

Made Him Tired.

Affectionate Wife—George, dear, sit down and rest in your elegant new chair.

Worried Husband—How can I rest in that chair, Emily, when I know that the man is likely to come at any moment to collect an installment on it?—Chicago Tribune.

Where Metal Does Not Rust.

Metal does not rust in Lake Titicaca, South America. A chain, an anchor, or any article of iron, if thrown in this lake or months, is as bright when taken up as when it came fresh from the foundry.

Five Times the Limit.

In Russia it is illegal to marry more than five times, and an octogenarian must not marry.

Expensive Hair.

A genuine lock of Dickens' hair sold for $40 at a New York auction.

SEEN WITH EYE OF FISH.

World as Viewed by Finny Tribe Interestingly Described by University Professor.

That a fish in an aquarium has an entirely different view of the external world than we whose vision is unhindered by glass or water is a thought that perhaps has come to but few. One of these few, states the Baltimore American, is Prof. Robert W. Wood, of Johns Hopkins university, who has succeeded in obtaining photographs of Mount Vernon place and a view looking west down Monument and north and south down Eutaw streets, as they would appear to a fish submerged near those localities.

As is well known, an eye below the surface of the water sees the sky compressed into a comparatively small circle of light, the center of which is always immediately above the observer, the appearances being as if the pond were covered with an opaque roof with a circular window cut in it. The objects surrounding the pond, such as trees, houses or people, must appear around the rim of the circle of light, but the human being is unable to get a clear notion of their appearance, since his eyes are not adapted to distinct vision under water.

Reasoning from this fact, it occurred to Mr. Wood that a very good notion of how these things appear to the fish would be obtained by immersing a camera in water and photographing the circle of light. His apparatus was constructed out of a lard pail, a short focus lens provided with a very small diaphragm being cemented over a hole perforated in a metal disk which rested on a rim soldered around the inside of the pail. The plate was placed on the bottom of the pail and the whole filled with clean water in a dark room. The lens was covered by a metal cap, operated by a handle on the outside of the pail. The apparatus was set on the ground and surface of the water covered with a sheet of glass to prevent ripples, the pail being so full that the glass was in contact with the water. This arrangement obviated the necessity of immersing the affair in a pond, since the function of the latter was performed by the water in the pail above the lens.

A number of interesting pictures were taken, among them being Mount Vernon place as it would appear to a fish submerged in a pond near the base of the lion. The monument is plainly shown and the adjacent buildings can be plainly made out around the rim of the circle of light.

DISPOSING OF OLD SHIPS.

Immense Tonnage Cleared Off by British Owners in Sales to Foreigners.

The extent to which British shipowners dispose of old vessels to foreigners is shown in statistical tables published in Lloyd's Register of Shipping. The tonnage cleared off in this way last year was 512,701 tons, comprising steamships of 422,395 tons and sailing vessels amounting to 90,306 tons. By these sales, which are the largest since 1900, Germany acquired 101,903 tons; Italy, 78,671 tons; Japan, 66,328 tons, and Norway, 59,702 tons. It must be a very considerable advantage, from a British point of view, to have a market like this for our "second-hand" vessels. Tables which are included in the register general's returns indicate that about 18 per cent. of the tonnage removed from the register because of foreign transfer was built before 1880, nearly 43 per cent. before 1885, 62 per cent. before 1890, 78 per cent. before 1895, and over 90.6 per cent. before 1900. In addition to the second-hand tonnage transferred to foreigners, 52,464 tons were transferred to British colonies during 1905, as compared with 37,464 tons in 1904, 62,907 tons in 1903, and 32,603 tons in 1902.

WOMEN GROWING TALLER.

The Average Height Said to Have Increased an Inch in Last Decade.

The latest statistics relating to the human frame show that the average height of the American woman has increased one inch in the last decade, while the man has not gained a fraction of an inch; in fact, has lost a fraction, says an exchange. There is food for thought in these figures, yet it will not do to get hysterical about them, as some sensational newspapers have done. There is no reason to aver that the future woman will be a giantess and her consort a pigmy. Rather, the deduction may be made that the woman is gradually losing her frailness and is approaching somewhat the virile strength and stature of the man. This is hailed as a consummation devoutly to be wished, because it will make for a future strong and vigorous race.

A century ago the woman of slight frame, petite and short, was the normal type. A large woman was looked upon as abnormal and masculine. In the last two decades woman has come into her own. She has won recognition from educationalists; she has left the fireside for the shop, store and office, thus competing actively with men in the arduous cares of daily business; she has been forced to develop her frame and strength because of this active competition. We see in the result of this so-called emancipation of women a larger, stronger and brainier woman.

The normal woman a decade ago was five feet five inches tall. She has added an inch and probably will add another in another decade or generation. Then she will arrive at the average man's height. The craze for athletics on the part of boys and girls will tend to enlarge the frame, even if it does restrict the amount of knowledge. The frame of the girl is even more susceptible to the enlarging influence of exercise than that of the boy, by reason of centuries of repression.

AFRICAN PLAGUE OF TIGERS.

Good Chance for Hunters of Big Game in the Irrawaddy Valley.

The British shikari need not leave his battery idle, even if big game in Africa has become too scarce to be worth the cost of pursuit. He has only to turn his footsteps to the Irrawaddy valley to secure quite an amplitude of that most heroic of all field sports, tiger shooting.

For some reason or other, says the London Globe, Mr. Stripes has begun to colonize that locality on quite an extensive scale, even invading villages at night and taking heavy toll of their inhabitants. The natives, much to their credit, offer all the resistance in their power, but, wretchedly armed as they are, the intruder takes little harm from their fusillades. Here, then, is an excellent opportunity for the well endowed British sportsman.

Burma is more accessible than the African interior, and also a far pleasanter and healthier country to knock about in. And who will deny that tiger shooting affords more exciting sport than potting wild elephants or hippopotami? Those who pursue on foot the great cat carry their lives in their hands every moment, while even from elephant back or from a "machan"—a platform constructed in a big tree—there is always the possibility of a combat at close quarters.

The strongest argument for the intervention of the British Nimrod is the humanitarian; it rests with him and with him alone to save the lives of hundreds of unfortunates.

Don't Kill the Hawk.

Man has sinned more than any other animal in trifling with nature's balance. Clover crops and the killing of hawks are apparently unrelated, yet the hawks eat the field mice, the field mice prey on the immature bees, and the bees fertilize the clover blossoms. The death of a hawk means an overincrease of field mice, and a consequent destruction of the bees.—Country Life in America.

THE MORNING EAGLE

Entered at the Postoffice as second class mail matter.

BY CARNES & WALLACE.

BRYAN, TEXAS, SEPTEMBER 16

It begins to look like Bryan will have to side-step the trolley line or get run over.

Two thousand and two hundred daily and 16,000 weekly newspapers in the United States are credited with a combined circulation of 46,000,000. The number of delinquent subscribers has probably never been determined.

One result of the missionary conference held here was the offering of Miss Gertrude Cole, of Waller, Texas, as an applicant for work in the foreign fields, under the direction of the Woman's Foreign Mission Board. Miss Cole was accepted, and will at once enter school at Chappell Hill to begin preparation for the work.—Navasota Examiner.

MISS EMMA PARNELL.

Miss Emma Parnell was born at Wexon, Brazos County, Texas, April 18, 1885, was converted and joined the Methodist church at Wesson when thirteen years of age. Rev. Sandle, pastor. For the last two years she has lived in Bryan and was employed in the telephone office. Several weeks ago she was taken seriously ill and passed quietly away Sep. 4, 1906, aged twenty-one years, four months and sixteen days. Such is the brief record of a sweet and beautiful life. It is not a question of how long one lives, but how well. Measured by that standard, Miss Emma did not live in vain for she was a great favorite with all who know her. Her bright sunny disposition, her spirit of self-sacrifice and thoughtfulness for others, her unswerving devotion to friends, and above all her beautiful love for her mother and other members of the family, were very marked characteristics. Who could not love such a character?

Death is always sad, but it is robbed of much of its gloom and sadness when we know the departed one had lived well, and therefore died well; for then we know the separation is not forever. May this blessed thought comfort the bereaved family and be a constant inspiration to them to so live as to be able to meet her in that happy land "where the flowers bloom forever and the sky is always bright." REV. B. B. SANDERS DEAD.

Mr. A. Worley of this city has been advised by telegram of the death of Rev. B. B. Sanders at home in Austin Friday evening. Rev. Sanders was formerly a citizen of Bryan for several years, and was for many years past state evangelist of the Christian church and highly successful in his work. He but lately returned from the extreme western portion of the state where he conducted a series of splendid meetings. Rev. Sanders was an ex-Confederate soldier and lived a long active and useful life. His wife, who was a sister of Mrs. A. Worley and Mrs. E. J. Lynch, died a few years ago, and he leaves several children. The many friends of Rev. Sanders and his family in this city deeply deplore his death. Rev. Sanders was a member of Vulcan Lodge, A. O. U. W. of Bryan.

Fire In Suburb of City of Mexico Does Great Damage.

City of Mexico, Sept. 13.—A fierce fire broke out in the cotton warehouse known as the Almacén General, in the warehouse district of Santiago, a suburb of this city. There was no hope of saving the building in which the fire originated, but the firemen directed efforts toward saving the surrounding property. Despite their efforts, the flames were communicated to the neighboring warehouses. The losses will aggregate $300,000.

FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN.

(Copyrighted 1906 by W. T. Foster.)

Washington, D. C. Sept. 15.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 14 to 18, warm wave 13 to 17, cool wave 17 to 21. Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast 18, cross west of Rockies country by close of 19, great central valleys 20 to 22, eastern states 23. Warm wave will cross west of Rockies about 18, great central valleys 20, eastern states 22. Cool wave will cross west of Rockies about 21, great central valleys 24, eastern states 26.

This disturbance will cause a great rise in temperatures following the very low temperatures that will prevail on and immediately following 15. From that time to end of the month no very low temperatures will occur and the last half of the month will average warmer than the first half.

I am not expecting dangerous storms to accompany this disturbance, but its weather features will be more marked than is usual for September, except that rainfall will be deficient.

During last half of September weather will be favorable to cotton and all other growing crops and top cotton will make a fine growth. Absence of frost after Sept. 18 will favor late corn.

I am expecting weather of the fall months to be warm and pleasant up to about Nov. 21, with conditions favorable to corn gathering, cotton picking and the continued growth of top cotton, but following Nov. 21 will come six weeks of the worst weather imaginable. All kinds of disagreeable and bad crop-weather that sometimes occurs during that season may be expected to prevail from about Nov. 21 to Dec. 31.

Farmers, planters and stock raisers can surely save much by having their grain all cribbed, their cotton in bales and their live stock well sheltered by Nov. 21, and those who fail in this will pay the penalties exacted from sluggards.

SCIENCE NOTES.

Nov. 29 Venus and 30 Mercury will pass between the earth and sun. Dec. 28 the earth passes between Jupiter and the sun and Jan. 2 between Neptune and the sun. These five planets and their seven moons will not only be bunched on one side of the sun but will cut each others electric connections with the great solar orb, therefore the earth's magnetic forces will be greatly disturbed, and these forces control our atmosphere and our weather.

My forecast of a hurrican near our southern coasts within three days of Sept. 4 was surely a great scientific success.

After some ridicule the spelling reform is growing in favor. It has been suggested that we use no double letters but where both letters are pronounced, because they belong to different syllables, one of them cannot well be dropped. Where they both belong to one syllable one is silent and could be discarded. Why not drop all silent letters? That would remedy the double letter foolishness.

NOT REPEALED.

Decision of Great Importance to Actual Settlers.

Austin, Sept. 15.—Judge W. E. Hawkins, first assistant attorney general, in answer to an inquiry from George C. Herman of Batesville, Tex., handed down an opinion in which he held that the six months' absence clause in the school land law of 1895 is not repealed by the act of 1905. The effect of this decision is that actual settlers have no right to absent themselves from their lands six months in one year for the purpose of schooling their children under the act of 1895 just the same as if the act of 1905 had never been passed.

Survivors of Pickett's Division and Philadelphia Brigade Again Meet.

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 15.—On the historic battlefield, where they clashed for supremacy, the survivors of General Pickett's division of the Confederate army met Staturday in fraternal reunion the survivors of the Philadelphia brigade, which is composed of four regiments of Pennsylvania volunteers. The reunion was held at "Bloody Angle," where General Pickett made his famous charge. A feature of the gathering was the presentation of General Armistead's sword to the men of the south. General Armistead fell during the charge and this sword has since been in the possession of the Philadelphia soldiers. The veterans held a campfire at night.

WINT FOR CANTEN.

Says Demoralizing Influence of Present Resorts is Terrible.

Washington, Sept. 15.—Brigadier General Wint, commanding the department of the Missouri, reports to the war department that, in his opinion, the canteen ought to be restored at army posts. He says: "The demoralizing influence of resorts surrounding the posts cannot be too strongly emphasized, giving rise, as it does, to a large proportion of the most serious offenses, and practically all those with penitentiary confinements. The condition is chargeable, in a great measure, in the opinion of the judge advocate, to the prohibition placed upon post exchanges."

Four Persons Were Drowned and the Same Number Narrowly Escaped.

New York, Sept. 17.—Four persons, whose names are unknown, were drowned from a launch in the lower bay Friday night when the launch overturned in a collision with a scow. Four other members of the party in the launch—three men and a woman—clung to the bottom of the craft until they were rescued and were taken to Stapleton, S. I., by the steamer El Paso. At the quarantine station they refused to give their names or tell those of the persons drowned.

The launch was found to be the Sausage, belonging to W. W. David of Jamaica, L. I. David was among the rescued. It is said by those who picked up the little boat that it must have been dangerously overloaded. It seemed incredible that eight persons would trust their lives to a small boat on a stormy night.

M'KINLEY MONUMENT.

Panic Nearly Prevailed During Unveiling by Mrs. Longworth.

Columbus, O., Sept. 15.—With a panic threatening in a crowd estimated at 50,000 surging about the stand erected in the capitol grounds, frantic to secure a glimpse of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, the president's daughter, the exercises arranged for the dedication of the McKinley monument were suddenly terminated Friday afternoon after the statue of the martyred president had been hurriedly unveiled by Mrs. Longworth.

The prompt action of the committee on arrangements was regarded as most fortunate, for the crowd was beyond control, and the shrieking of women and children, who were caught in the crush, was rapidly working the crowd into a frenzy. Many women fainted, and were carried out of the crowd by the police. Two were so badly hurt that they had to be removed in an ambulance. Mrs. Eliza Louisa Kuhn of 1308 South Sixth street, who was trampled, and a negro woman. Both will recover.

Throughout the exciting scenes Mrs. Longworth remained cool and self-possessed, but afterward she said: "It was the worst crush I ever witnessed. I have seen nothing like it in my trip around the world."

Mr. and Mrs. Longworth had an exciting experience in escaping from the crowd at the capitol. From the speaker's stand they went through a window overlooking the platform into the governor's office, but they were scarcely inside when the people began to surge through the doors from the corridors, and the office was quickly filled. They then attempted to reach an automobile, which was awaiting them on the street, but once outside they were caught in the surging crowd. Finding no immediate avenue of escape, they fought their way out of the capitol grounds and across Broad street into the Outlook building. There they remained until a carriage was secured, and the police cleared a way to it, and they were driven to Hotel Hartman. Later they took a train for Cincinnati.

Tiers of seats had been constructed across the entire west front of the capitol, with the speakers' stand in the center. Four thousand tickets were issued for these seats to invited guests, and all were occupied.

The McKinley monument stands at the west entrance to the grounds, facing the street, and the crowd was packed into the space between the speakers' stand and the monument. The affair was set for 2:30, and began promptly.

It was not until the band was playing the overture that the danger of a panic became apparent, however. Suddenly women in the crowd next to the speakers' stand began to scream and cry for help. Then several women fainted and were carried up to the stand. Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden arose to deliver the invocation, but he had only spoken a few sentences when the roar of the voices forced him to stop. Governor Harris then attempted to quiet the crowd. "Keep back!" he shouted, "you are crushing the people in front to death." The governor's voice could not be heard twenty feet away, however, on account of the din. The commotion then became so alarming that those on the stand asked Mrs. Longworth to come forward, that in the hope of a glimpse of her might satisfy the crowd. She came to the front of the stand, and it was seen at once that something must be done, and it was decided to unveil the statue at once. Mrs. Longworth then pulled the ribbon attached to wires which drew the flag's covering the statue aside. A man hoisted on another's shoulders grasped the ribbons and the wire, and they were quickly torn into fragments by relic seekers.

The crush was stopped for a few minutes, but it was soon renewed, and Mrs. Longworth came to the front of the platform and bowed to the throng. In the meantime, however, the committee on arrangements had decided to defer the addresses until evening at the memorial hall, and as soon as Mrs. Longworth retired, the announcement was made. The people struggling for their lives around the stand cheered, but a storm of hisses came from people on the outskirts of the crowd who did not understand the situation.

Friday night addresses were made at Memorial hall of University of Ohio. Among the speakers were Senator Daniel of Virginia and Associate Justice Day. Mrs. McKinley, who was unable to be present, was represented by her niece, Mrs. Ida McKinley Day.
